The NeoCosmos way of thinking is born from logic, reason, and common sense, starting from what we can observe and reflect upon. Free from inherited ideologies and narratives, each book offers a direct and easy-to-read vision. It does not seek to convince, only to provide clarity so the reader can think for themselves.

THE THEORY OF THE INTERMITTENT SELF

Modern humanism assumes all individuals possess equal levels of agency, autonomy, and consciousness. This book argues the opposite: consciousness is not constant—it's scarce and variable.

The distinction is made between the Reflective Self, driven by imitation and validation (the statistical majority), and the Generative Self, capable of autonomous cognition.

Civilization becomes a stage where collective projections fill the void of agency.

The result is not tragedy, but logical obsolescence.

Sample – Chapter 1: THE WISE MAN NEVER EXISTED

The word “wise man” is used with a lightness that disarms. It is applied to historical figures, to ancient thinkers, to spiritual leaders, and, at times, to people who simply demonstrate calm or knowledge. We take for granted the existence of this human category, as if it were an observable fact. But if we stop to analyze it without the filter of admiration, the figure of the wise man completely vanishes. It is not a reality. It is one of the most elaborate and persistent projections of the human mind.
